Knowing where to look for information is important in any field. By identifying criminal justice information sources all over the United States, this Directory provides criminal justice agencies and interested individuals with an important service — one that greatly facilitates the exchange of information about law enforcement and the criminal justice system.

Paul Cascarano, Assistant Director
National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice

The National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS) is an international clearinghouse of information on law enforcement and criminal justice sponsored by the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, the research center of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. The Institute was established by Congress in the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 and among its responsibilities of research, development, and evaluation is one to maintain a clearinghouse for the exchange of information about law enforcement and criminal justice. This clearinghouse—NCJRS—collects relevant documents from sources all over the world and maintains a computerized data base of approximately 40,000 documents about police, courts, prosecutors, public defenders, corrections, juvenile justice, and human resource development. By collecting and disseminating this information, NCJRS contributes to the goal of improving law enforcement and criminal justice.

NCJRS is operated and administered by Aspen Systems Corporation for the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice under contract number J-LEAA-023-77 with the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, U.S. Department of Justice.

Introduction

This Directory is issued by the National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS) as part of its continuing effort to foster the exchange of information and create channels of communication among those who have an interest in the field of criminal justice. By providing a resource such as this Directory, NCJRS makes the resources and services of many agencies available to all concerned with law enforcement and the criminal justice system. Criminal justice professionals have a centralized listing of services at their fingertips to assist them as they address the challenges of contemporary society.

In 1977, NCJRS published the first edition of the Directory of Criminal Justice Information Sources, based on response to questionnaires distributed during 1976 to approximately 2,000 agencies and research organizations. This third edition represents an attempt to update previous editions and is based on a survey of approximately 200 criminal justice agencies conducted in 1978-79. Questionnaires were mailed to all the agencies listed in the 1978 edition as well as to other agencies identified by NCJRS staff. The information presented in this Directory is based on responses received.

The 149 agencies included feature such information resources as computerized literature search services, interlibrary loan programs, reference services, and technical assistance to criminal justice professionals. The organizations are listed in alphabetical order and an index by criminal justice specialty is provided to assist users.

Although every effort was made to contact known information sources, this Directory should not be considered an exhaustive compilation of criminal justice sources. Because of editorial selection requirements, unanswered inquiries, incomplete questionnaires, and lack of information, some sources may have been excluded.

As part of its continuing effort to provide up-to-date criminal justice information, NCJRS plans to publish periodic revisions of the Directory of Criminal Justice Information Sources. Criteria for agencies to be included in the next edition of the Directory are presented on page 159. Guidelines for completing a survey are provided page 160, directly opposite a blank form on page 161. If your agency meets the criteria on page 159 and you would like your agency to be listed in the next edition, please complete the survey response form on page 161 and mail it to:
